

ABSTRACT

5

A freight container has doors at one end of different widths but the same height. The larger door has a lock by which that door can be opened through one lock operation. The smaller door has no external lock but 10 is locked internally.